2016 National Data Book Released

A new KIDS COUNT report ranks Delaware 25th in the nation for overall child well-being. This state-by-state report issued by the Annie E. Casey Foundation, focuses on key trends in child well-being in the post-recession years. The report reveals that the teenagers of Generation Z, the rising cohort born after 1995 that follows the Millennials, broke records in education and health indicators despite growing up in the midst of the economic downturn. The 2016 Data Book is now available here. Additional info is available at http://datacenter.kidscount.org, which also contains the most recent national, state and local data on hundreds of indicators of child well-being. The Data Center allows users to create rankings, maps and graphs for use in publications and on websites, and to view real-time information on mobile devices.

What Would It Take for DE to be Ranked #1?

While Delaware ranks 25th in the latest Casey Report, what would it take for our state to rank 1st across domains and indicators in the latest National Data book? Check out this new resource to see how many children it would take to make our state #1 in Economic Wellbeing, Education, Health, and Family & Community.
